

HOODOO STAYED WITH THE HIND

Departing from Ahukini, Kauai, during the early part of January, the hoodoo that took up his uninvited presence aboard the schooner Robert R. Hind, during a 100-day voyage from Newcastle, N. S. W., to Honolulu, continued the journey to the Columbia river.

It was a sad tale of hardship and privation that the little band of sailors in the Hind unfolded upon gaining the mainland February 23. They claimed that for days they were obliged to subsist on very short rations. This feature of the story of the voyage is contradicted by Captain Wikander, master of the Hind, who, while admitting that there was a danger of a shortage along certain lines of provisions, no one aboard the schooner was in actual want.

In sailing from the Kauai port the schooner reached the latitude of Astoria in less than 12 days. Then followed a season of contrary winds and for three weeks master and men were permitted the minimum amount of rest owing to the vessel attempting to beat its way up and down the coast in a strong easterly gale. The Hind passed Cape Flattery several times in the endeavor to enter the mouth of the Columbia.

In a letter received at Honolulu yesterday, Captain Wikander states that several tugs had been posted along the coast to take a line from his command. At Gray's Harbor a tremendous sea was breaking and the attempt to bring the schooner, laden with ballast only to a safe refuge was abandoned.

On Saturday Governor Pinkham signed the land patent of Josina Medeiros, Lot 41, Kalaheo.
